Promotion for Professor Lutz.

Ralph H. Lutz, Ph. D., Assistant Professor of History, University of Washington, has received an important promotion. He had remarkable experiences as a junior officer in the intelligence department with the American Army in France, Belgium and Germany. When that service ended he was drafted by Herbert C. Hoover for relief work in Poland which extended his experiences also into Austria, Serbia and Italy. He returned to Seattle in December, 1920, and at once resumed his work at the University of Washington.

Mr. Hoover, during his great relief work in Europe collected many pamphlets, books and documents bearing on the history of the war. All these he presented to Stanford University and with them an endowment of $50,000 to purchase further materials along the same line, especially in the European countries involved in the war. After making the gift, Mr. Hoover approved the proposal of Professor Adams that Professor Lutz be secured to administer the work.

If accepted at that stage it would probably mean an end to his teaching which was not agreeable to Professor Lutz. This objection was met when Stanford University gave him additional appointment as Associate Professor of History. In this way Professor Lutz will begin the next academic year in one of the most attractive history positions in America.

His associates in the University of Washington deeply regret his going but they rejoice over the opportunity for service which lie before him in the new field.

Two Historical Flags.

Mrs. Jackson was one of the most interesting pioneers of Washington. In one sense he was the first American settler north
