Professor Frank A. Golder, of the State College of Washington, was selected by the History Research Department of the Carnegie Institution to search the archives in Russia. He made considerable progress in St. Petersburg (which became Petrograd while he was there) and in Moscow. The war interrupted his work and he returned to America. He is now in Washington City working over the materials. He has accepted an engagement to give two courses of lectures on his recent work during the next Summer Session in the University of Washington. This will be a rare opportunity for those interested.
