Announcements

- ¶ The leading article, "Chief Seattle and Angelina" is written by Clarence B. Bagley out of a long life of intimate pioneer experiences. It is probably as complete a record of the subjects as can now be prepared.
- ¶ Mr. Austin Mires, of Ellensburg, is one of the four remaining of the seventy-five Delegates who framed the Constitution of the State of Washington in 1889. It is a pleasure to give here his "Remarks" in permanent form.
- ¶ T. C. Elliott has for many years been one of the contributing editors of this Quarterly. His articles are always welcome. In this issue he supplies a valuable summary of discussions about the origin of the name of Oregon.
- ¶ Mr. W. P. Bonney, Secretary of the Washington State Historical Society, supplies a brief record of the placing of another historical site marker.
- ¶ Readers will easily appreciate the care and effort bestowed upon the attempt to prove that Doctor Saugrain helped Lewis and Clark in preparing for the great work of their exploration of the Northwest.
- ¶ The next issue of the Quarterly will be the opening number of Volume XXIII. Materials are already on hand to renew the regular features of Documents and News Department, necessarily crowded out of this issue. Articles and book reviews are under way from some of the best known workers in the history field of the Pacific Northwest.
