Summer School Guest Professors

Visiting teachers of history at the University of Washington Summer School were Marcus W. Jernegan, Professor of History at the University of Chicago, who has specialized in the field of Colonial History. Professor Jernegan is also very widely known through his text-book, The Colonies, in the Longman-Green series. Medieval History was offered by Professor Quirinus Breen of Albany College, Oregon. Oregon was also represented by Professor R. C. Clark, who is widely known in the Northwest; his special field of study is that of the Pacific Northwest.

State College Secures Fort Colville Papers

The Department of History and Political Science of the State College of Washington was recently given custody of the papers of W. P. Winans, farmer and deputy agent at Fort Colville during the 1860's and early '70's. The collection contains complete diaries for the period 1857-1868, letter books, ledgers, and cash books, a few maps of the Colville Valley, and some significant newspaper clippings. These papers have been supplemented by later agency papers donated by Dr. S. P. McPherson and Mr. Albert Kulzer, Attorney at Law of Chewelah. They contain vouchers and bills, copies of official orders, and numerous letters by Indians and their white friends. The two collections dovetail very well and should constitute excellent sources for the study of the Northwest Indian and Indian administration. It will require the better part of a year to classify and index these collections.

The Carey Map Collection

Judge Charles H. Carey has recently presented to the library of the Oregon Historical Society his fine collection of maps relating to the Pacific Northwest. The maps, exceeding one hundred in number, are mounted on boards. They were selected to show the gradual development of geographical knowledge of the Northwest Coast.
