

States in Raising and Maintaining Armies." To this has been added two other addresses: "The Military Obligation of Citizenship" and "The Civil Obligation of the Army," both delivered in 1915. The three addresses comprise the contents with an introduction by John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University.

Though the book has no particular bearing on the Pacific Northwest, it is of interest at this time to citizens of all parts of America.

MISCELLANEOUS WRITINGS OF F. B. HAWES. Edited by Ed. M. Hawes. (Everett, Wash., Hawes Press, 1915. Pp. 53.)

In the foreword the son gives this brief biography of his father: "Ferdinand B. Hawes was born at Fox Lake, Wisconsin, on October 11, 1858. After his father's death in the Union army, he was educated in the Soldiers' Children's School in Wisconsin, and there learned the shoemaker's trade. Later he attended the State Normal School and after graduating there took up school teaching which he followed continuously, with the exception of a brief experience in the publishing business, until 1900. Then with the belief, as he expressed it, that 'the world has but little use for superannuated school teachers,' he left the Superintendency of the Olympia Schools to enter business in Everett, where he continued until his accidental death on October 26th, 1908."

The little pamphlet reveals the thought of F. B. Hawes. He hated and combatted sham. He had a lively humor and a tender sentiment. These qualities show in the essays, speeches, letters and poems. Only one hundred and twenty copies of the book were printed by the family for relatives and friends.
