

Announcement

- ¶ The cause of history on Puget Sound has been greatly benefited by Mrs. John Allan Park, of Hayward, California, who has placed in the University of Washington archives the extensive diaries faithfully filled during the pioneer and Indian periods by her grand uncle, Winfield Scott Ebey.
- ¶ There are many manifestations of patriotism in the State of Washington during the World War. Attention is called to an item in the News Department telling about Mr. Samuel Hill and others leading in the erection of the first monument to our heroic dead.
- ¶ Mr. George H. Himes, of Portland, the well-known authority on Northwestern history, is one who has accepted the invitation to send in corrections of the origins of Washington geographic names being published serially in this Quarterly. He says Elma, in Grays Harbor County, was named for Miss Elma Austin, a well-known pioneer of the early days. The correction will be made before final publication of the material in book form. Others are again invited to send in any corrections they may have. The work is cooperative.
