

Announcement

¶ Articles have been selected for this issue which have a bearing on the Great World War. Especially is this true of the leading articles on the salmon industry as a source of food and the spruce harvest for airplanes.

¶ War needs are great and diverse. They are pressing upon the attention of all. In common with every other vehicle of public information, the Washington Historical Quarterly is alive to these needs. Since another issue will not appear before the second Christmas Membership Campaign of the American Red Cross, readers are urged to remember that great cause in order that the State of Washington may be prompt in giving a complete and perfect response.

¶ H. F. Hunt, who contributes the article on "Slavery Among the Indians of Northwestern America," is Principal of the Stadium High School, Tacoma.

¶ Readers are again reminded that any corrections of the items under "Origin of Washington Geographic Names" will be appreciated.

¶ This issue completes Volume IX of the Washington Historical Quarterly. You are requested to continue your cordial support so that Volume X may be as good or better than its predecessors.
