Mazama has valuable articles on Oregon geology and geography as well as a tender eulogy by William Gladstone Steele on one of the club's most prized members—Prince Lucien Campbell, President of the University of Oregon, who died on August 14, 1925.

Each publication has the usual reports of the year's activities valuable to the members and, in the aggregate, constituting a commendable record of good work, more durable than the members now realize.

A Pioneer Search for an Ideal Home. By PHOEBE GOODELL JUDSON. (Bellingham, Washington: Union Printing, Binding and Stationery Company, 1925. Pp. 314. $2.00.)

The title-page announces that the book was published in the author's ninety-fifth year and that she had crossed the plains in 1853, becoming a resident of the Puget Sound country before the organization of Washington Territory.

She was one of the founders of Lynden and chose the name of the settlement. The people of Whatcom County justly held her in high esteem. During the last half century "Mother" and latterly "Grandma" Judson was loved as one of the established features of that part of the commonwealth.

The book, without table of contents or index, is a running account of pioneer experiences through the days of Indians, of forests and of the real first settlers.

A legion of friends march through the pages, some of them singing verses and all of them leaving a record to be cherished by all who love the annals of the pioneers.

The book constitutes another fine monument to one of the loved builders of Washington.

William Allen, a Study in Western Democracy. By REGINALD CHARLES MCGRANE. (Columbus: The Ohio State Archeological and Historical Society, 1925. Pp. 279.)

Unless he knew his William Allen thoroughly, no collector of Oregon literature would do more than glance at this book. It would be an error of judgment and his negligence would be culpable.

Chapter V. is entitled: "Fifty-Four Forty or Fight", and that chapter reveals United States Senator William Allen of Ohio
