

country, and formed a strong link in our chain of title to the Pacific Northwest.

"The personnel of this expedition was composed of enlisted officers and men of the army of the United States, Meriwether Lewis and William Clark being of equal rank, although Captain Lewis was tacitly considered the higher authority. They carried with them the flag of our country, the Stars and Stripes. It was not the same flag we use today; it had fifteen stars and fifteen stripes, then the official flag of our nation. They also carried medals to distribute to the Indians, a few of special design and others used by George Washington in his dealing with Indians. Departing from here on the afternoon of the 18th of October, the following morning they met with Chief Yellepit of the Walla Walla tribe and presented him with both a medal and a flag, which he preserved for many years after.

"If you are ever privileged to visit the capital city of Virginia, you will find there on the state house grounds, a famous monument of George Washington, surrounded by other famous Virginians who had assisted in the founding and early events of our republic. Among those life-sized figures is one of Meriwether Lewis, explorer, discoverer, and geographer, who camped on or near this spot for three days in October, 1805, in whose honor this monument has now been erected here."

Anniversary in Olympia

An event of historic importance occurred in Olympia on Saturday, December 10, when there was celebrated with appropriate honors the seventy-fifth anniversary of Olympic Lodge No. 1, of Free and Accepted Masons. The lodge was organized on December 11, 1852, while Washington was still a part of Oregon. It was No. 5 of Oregon, but when Washington Territory was organized by Congress in 1853, the lodge became No. 1 under the new jurisdiction.

Geographic Decisions

The United States Geographical Board issues leaflets after each session and then at about four-year intervals a pamphlet in which are assembled all the decisions for the period covered. Such a pamphlet has recently appeared as the second supplement to the fifth report. It is, of course, a valuable pamphlet to save for consultation. Although many of these decisions have heretofore been chronicled in this publication a summary is here given of the items relating to the State of Washington.

Clark County: Friendly Reach.

Ferry County: Taylor Ridge (not Big Boulder).

King County: Bryant Peak, Retreat Lake (not Fish or No. 32 Lake), Wright Mountain, Youngs Lake (not Swan Lake).

Jefferson County: Jeffers Glacier (on Mount Olympus).

Lewis County: Allen Mountain.

San Juan County: Aleck Rocks, Armitage Island, Battleship Island (not Morse Island), Blakely Hill, Buck Mountain, Chadwick Hill, Davis Point, Deadman Island, Doe Island, Iceberg Island, Lookout Hill, Lopez Hill, McConnell Island (not Brown or Wasp Island), Mount Pickett (not Doe Bay Mountain), Pointer Island (not White Rock), Rosario Hill (not Stony Hill), Satellite Island (not James Island), Sportsman's Lake (not Sportsman's or Lake Tucker), Tiptop Hill, Woolard Mountain, Young Hill.

Skagit County: Towhead Island (not Rock, Tow Head nor Cypress Rock).

Skamania County: Augspurgen Mountain (not Bald Mountain), Sheridan Point (not Sheridan's).

Whatcom County: Heather Meadow (not Austin Pass).

The negatives in parentheses are the names rejected by the next preceding name decided upon. In the case of Heather Meadow near Mount Baker, the decision does not disturb the name of Austin Pass but gives the adjoining meadow a distinctive name.
