Announcements

- ¶ Articles on the progress of science in the State of Washington will occupy much space in the Quarterly for the next two years. Researches are now in progress. An introduction and the first article in the proposed series appear in this issue.
- ¶ Mr. D. A. Brown has again secured an interesting contribution in his capacity as Historian of the Skamania County Historical Society. Mr. Sebring has told his own experiences during the Indian Raid on the Cascades.
- ¶ The article on "The Old Stevens Mansion" was written by Mrs. Kate Stevens Bates, youngest and last surviving child of Washington's first Governor — Isaac Ingalls Stevens.
- ¶ Mr. J. Neilson Barry, of Portland, is again on the track of a valuable historical manuscript. It incidentally involves a search for Indian mounds.
- ¶ A second installment of "Yakima Days" by Denys Nelson appears in this issue. The concluding installment will appear in the next issue.
- ¶ Major O. W. Hoop has rendered a good service by supplying a copy of Col. T. Morris's report on the Indian war and treaties.
- ¶ An article in the News Department is of especial, though sorrowful, interest. It records the recent death of Mr. Harry B. McElroy, of Olympia, who has served as a valuable contributing editor of this Quarterly for the past ten years.
