Announcements

- ¶ Dean John N. Cobb of the College of Fisheries, University of Washington, is the author of the third article in our series devoted to the history of science in the State of Washington.
- ¶ It is significant that Professor Herbert H. Gowen, who is about to lead an important expedition to the Orient, should be represented in this issue by an article, "An American Pioneer in Japan," and by a review of Professor Payson J. Treat's new book The Far East.
- ¶ Albert P. Taylor, Librarian of the Archives of Hawaii, one of the leaders in the recent Sesquicentennial celebration in honor of Captain James Cook, has furnished an authoritative article on those important ceremonies for this issue.
- ¶ The record of the experiences of James W. Watt as a packer is brought to a conclusion in this issue. The manuscript was furnished by William S. Lewis of Spokane.
- ¶ The article by T. C. Elliott, of Walla Walla, will show how well he represented Oregon and Washington at the Sir George Simpson memorial in British Columbia.
- ¶ Volume XX opens with abundant materials for a successful year.
