Announcements

¶ Professor J. Orin Oliphant began his study of the reapportionment problems in Washington several years ago while he was a member of the teaching staff of the State Normal School at Cheney. He is now a professor in Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

¶ Mr. Clarence L. Andrews is an Alaskan of long years standing. At present he is "outside," residing in Seattle. His biography of Captain William Moore is based largely on letters and other manuscript and newspaper records saved by the old Captain and his son, W. D. Moore.

¶ The article on "The Ulster County Gazette" is to be reprinted in pamphlet form to aid the Library and the History Department of the University of Washington in answering annual inquiries about that old paper recording the funeral of George Washington.

¶ Professor O. B. Sperlin concludes the Brackenridge Journal of 1841.

¶ The Book Reviews reveal the usual holiday harvest of new publications.

¶ The important items in the News Department include an attractive announcement about the proposed collection in the Library of Congress of negatives and prints of old buildings in America.

¶ This issue begins a new volume.
