

The only decision for the State of Washington is a correction as follows: "Cottonwood: point, Clark County, Washington, on western shore of Columbia River, about 2 miles southeast of Washougal. (Not Vancouver as given in Fifth Report.) This is the name used locally."

Another decision changes the spelling of a name of importance to all geographers and oceanographers, as follows: "Kuroshio: Japanese or 'Black' current, Pacific Ocean. (Not Kuroshiwo or Kurosio.) Change of spelling as given in Fifth Report."

Historic Cattle Trade

Professor J. Orin Oliphant has a chapter in the April 1932, issue of Agricultural History on "The Cattle Trade from the Far Northwest to Montana." It will be remembered that he also had an article on "Winter Losses of Cattle in the Oregon Country, 1874-1890" in the Washington Historical Quarterly for January, 1932. Both articles have emanated from his extensive studies for the Doctor of Philosophy dissertation at Harvard entitled "The Range-Cattle Industry in the Oregon Country to 1890."

The Pacific Historical Review

The Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association has launched a new publication of great promise. Two issues have appeared bearing the imprint of The Arthur H. Clark Company, Glendale, California. These bear the dates of March and June, 1932.

The Basin of the Pacific is looked upon as an entity and articles will be welcomed "on the western states of both North and South America, on the islands of the sea, and on the new and old countries of Australia and Japan, China and Asiatic Russia."

One number a year will carry the proceedings of the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association as "those scholars who live in the West but study and love to teach us the lore of other lands should have their day in court. And the exotic flavor of an occasional article on George Washington, or Peter the Hermit, or Tiglathpilesar may help to save the rest of us from the sin of provincialism."
