

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Zala Pavšič is the faculty secretary at the Faculty of Media, Ljubljana. Her main research areas include friendship studies, memory studies, and the disintegration of Yugoslavia. Dr. Pavšič is also active as a translator of Russian poetry. zalapavsic@gmail.com

Urška Perenič is an associate professor of Slovene literature at the Department of Slovene at the University of Ljubljana. She specialized in the theory and methodology of empirical literary studies and carries out concrete empirical projects. Her research focus is on literary life, narrative prose, and female bilingual authorship of the nineteenth and the first half of the twentieth century. She also specializes in spatial literary studies. Among her most important recent works is a facsimile edition with commentary of Luiza Pesjak's Beatin dnevnik (Beata's diary), the first Slovene diary novel (1887; 2019).

Tom Priestly was born in Uganda, raised in England, and has lived in Canada for fifty-four years. Professor Emeritus of Slavic Linguistics at the University of Alberta since 2003, he has a special interest in Slovene sociolinguistics, his research being based on fieldwork in the Slovene-minority village of Sele in Austria; he visited Sele frequently until recently, and considers himself a Polselan. Translation has been for him, above all, a relief. tpriestl@telus.net

James M. Sutton is associate professor of English at Florida International University. He has taught in England, Italy, and Slovenia. He holds a Ph.D. in Renaissance Studies from Yale University. He is the author of Materializing Space at an Early Modern Prodigy House: The Cecils at Theobalds, 1564–1607 (Ashgate 2005), in addition to other, related articles. He coedited Exile in Global Literature and Culture: Homes Found and Lost (Routledge 2020), which includes his essay on Shakespeare and representations of exile. suttonj@fiu.edu