

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

John K. Cox is associate professor and chair of history at Wheeling Jesuit University. He is the author of The History of Serbia (2002) and of Slovenia: Evolving Loyalties (forthcoming). His chief research interests include nationalism, fascism, and Marxist revisionism.

Ervin Dolenc is a researcher at the Institute for Contemporary History in Ljubljana. He is the author of articles and books on Slovenian political and cultural history between the World Wars.

Aleš Gabrič is a researcher at the Institute for Contemporary History in Ljubljana and member of the faculty at Ljubljana University's School of Social Sciences. He is the author of articles and books on the history of education, culture policy, and intellectuals in modern Slovene history.

Tom M.S. Priestly is professor emeritus of Slavic linguistics at the University of Alberta. His main area of research is minority languages, especially Slovene in Carinthia. He has worked in other areas, such as historical linguistics and the historiography of linguistics, and occasionally translates Slovene poetry into English.

Peter Vodopivec was Professor of European and American History at the University of Ljubljana until 1999. Since 1999 he has been a scientific counselor at the Institute for Modern History in Ljubljana. He is the author of numerous articles and publications on Slovene, Austrian, French, and Central European history.

Alojzija Zupan-Sosič is a professor of Slovene literature at the Department of Slovenian Language and Literature, University of Ljubljana. She has published articles and essays on contemporary Slovene poetry and fiction, in particular "women's writing," love poetry, and the Slovene novel. Her most recent book is Sodobni slovenski roman ob koncu stoletja (2003).